

Warrants Await Appearance of Governor Small

Sheriff Waits For Voluntary Surrender of Indicted Executive

LEGAL FORCES READY

Prepare For Bitter Fight on Technical Points of the Case

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 28—The governor of Illinois was "lost" early today.

Len Small, under indictment on charges involving misuse of $2,500,000 in state interest funds, dropped from sight late yesterday when his legal advisers reported him leaving Chicago. His whereabouts early today were unknown. Reports from Kankakee, his home town, declared he had not arrived there while employees at the governor's mansion here said he had not returned to Springfield.

Three warrants for his arrest on the "fund" charges were held meanwhile by Sheriff Henry Mester, who was awaiting reply from the governor to his offer for a "conditional surrender."

The legal forces of Sangamon county were preparing to wage a bitter fight against any attempt of the governor to evade trial through technical processes of the law. It was announced that state's Attorney Fred Mortimer would bitterly oppose a habeas corpus proceeding or a writ for change of venue from Sangamon county. Mortimer, in effect, flatly challenged the governor to test his case before any tribunal.

"No man can evade the responsibility of a criminal act in this county," said Mortimer. "The man who believes he can do so is poorly advised."

The governor's two principal legal weapons are the habeas corpus proceeding and a writ for a change of venue from this county. Use of either, according to Mortimer, will be fought through every court. Both would compel a test of the governor's case, it was stated.

The state's attorney, anticipating a habeas corpus proceeding in Chicago yesterday refused to permit Small's surrender in that city. The governor's arrest within Lagamon County, it was contended, would compel his attorneys to bring the habeas corpus before the court of appeals for the Springfield district. He must first, however, submit to arrest.

If he surrenders himself to the authorities he will be immediately released either under $50,000 bonds or on his own recognizance. The habeas corpus, proceeding, it was pointed out, (Continued on Page 4, Col. 2.)

Soviet Russia Wants Aid Of America But Won't Ask

BY DON S. DAY
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.

RIGA, July 28—Soviet Russia desires a conference with the United States to secure financial and economic aid for the rehabilitation of the country, but will not suggest it until assured that America is in a receptive mood, according to Emerson Jennings, President of the American Association to Promote Russian trade, who is in Riga today following a seven months sojourn in Moscow.

"Despite famine and cholera, the Soviet government at Moscow will retain complete control of Russia," declared Mr. Jennings.

"During my stay in Moscow, I had conversations with members of the Soviet Supreme Council for national economy regarding the services of American engineers.

"It was suggested that an American mission take complete charge of the economic efforts of the Soviet

To Restore Fire Whistle On The Pumping Station

The fire whistle on the pumping station of the waterworks is to be restored to service. Instead of being blown by steam, however, it will be operated by compressed air.

An air compressor will be installed in the pumping station and a storage tank erected. Air has been adopted in preference to electricity because of the electric current's uncertainty. Oftentimes, during a storm the current goes off, putting the whistle out of commission when probably needed.

If the whistle operates successfully by compressed air, it will be a valuable alarm, as, recently, the fire bell has been put out of commission a number of times by lightning and wind storms.

Bristol Knights to Watch Convention

Local Members Interested in "Casey's" Gathering at 'Frisco

FOR "AMERICA FIRST"

Bristol Knights of Columbus are interested in the coming international convention of the Knights, which is to meet in San Francisco, August 2-5.

The local council will not be represented at the meeting, but it was through the efforts of the representatives of Bristol Council to the State convention, that Philadelphia district this year will be represented at the international gathering by three members instead of two, as previously.

The largest international convention of the Knights of Columbus will be held in San Francisco beginning August 2 and ending August 5. Thousands of Knights and their women folks are already on their way to the Coast in special trains from the East and the Middle West to roll up the total of approximately 25,000 visitors that the K. of C. international meet will attract to the city by the Golden Gate.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and his city fathers have appointed a committee of one hundred prominent San Franciscans of all denominations to greet the Knights and arrange for their entertainment while in the city.

Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia will have the army of Knights on their march westward and sound the keynote of the convention, known as the "America First" convention, because the Knights of Columbus plan to launch a gigantic movement, which will call for the expenditure of more than a million dollars in the preparation of a new popular history of the United States from original sources.

Other important works that the Knights will initiate at this convention are their national fight on the white plague and the new phase of their educational and hospitalization work for veterans of the war, the latter to cost approximately $5,000,000.

Delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada, from Newfoundland, Cuba, Alaska, Porto Rico, Panama, Hawaii, the Philippines and Mexico will represent the 800,000 Knights that form the membership of the organization. With them will go scores of alternates.

The convention will lay new plans for the conduct of the K. of C. schools, which have already graduated free more than 150,000 former service men in all kinds of technical courses. The convention will be called upon to certify the K. of C. Plan to maintain scholarships in twenty recognized colleges and universities for 500 young veterans of the war.

In July York's visiting nurses cared for 348 patients, making 3011 visits.

Discussing Date For Conference On Disarmament

Administration Officials Now Tackle That Question

JAP REPLY PLEASES

In Accord With Suggestion On Far Eastern Problem

BY HARRY L. ROGERS
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.

WASHINGTON, July 28—Highly gratified at the response from Japan, and optimistic as to the outcome of the joint disarmament and Far Eastern conference, administration officials today took up in earnest the task of fixing a date for the Washington gathering.

Already there have been informal exchanges of opinion between the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy on this subject, and it is expected that the question will be taken up with Ambassador Shidehara of Japan when he calls at the State Department today.

There was no tendency whatever among officials to be critical of the tone of the reply of the Tokio government, and one high administration official characterized it as "a very graceful acceptance." It was pointed out that one of the important reservations suggested by Japan, namely that there should be a discussion of agenda prior to the opening of the conference, had already been agreed to by Secretary Hughes in his memorandum of July 23, while the other two, which deal with matters which Japan believes might well be excluded from discussion, are perfectly agreeable to this government.

Attention was called to the fact that the view expressed by the Japanese government as to the desirability of reaching a general agreement on Far Eastern questions as a necessary prelude to an agreement on limitation of armaments, is entirely in accord with the ideas of the Harding administration, as stated in the official announcement concerning the proposed conference. Everywhere there manifested an intention to take these statements of Japan's policy at their face value, with practically no disposition to speculate as to any possible ulterior motive in her reservations.

The only passage of the Japanese memorandum to which even the most cautious could take exception, it was pointed out, is the last paragraph, which states the belief of the Japanese government that the agenda should be so arranged as to facilitate a general agreement on Far Eastern policies, and that "introduction therein of problems such as are of sole concern to certain particular powers or such matters that may be regarded as accomplished facts should be scrupulously avoided."

In this connection, the administration freely admits that there might be questions in which, for example, only China and Japan were interested, and which might perfectly well be settled by negotiations between those powers rather than by discussion before an international conference. If, however, the question should be sufficiently broad in scope to involve some general principle, as for example the open door, it would then become a proper subject for consideration at the Washington conference.

Police Witness Says Stigma Has Been Obliterated

Navy Advises Cummons Discharge Doesn't Affect Citizenship

RAID HEARING SEQUEL

Resented Being Characterized As "A Man Without a Country"

Characterized at a recent police hearing as "a man without a country" and one who had "sunk so low that he had lost his citizenship" Edward C. Cummons has hastened to remove what he considers a stigma upon him, by communicating with the authorities at Washington as to his standing as a citizen.

Mr. Cummons, who lives at 330 Wood street, and who was a witness for the prosecution in charges made by the police against alleged liquor sellers, claims that the advice he has received from the Navy Department disprove the allegations made against him at the hearing.

When Cummons on July 9th, appeared as the chief witness against persons arrested in a police raid, Attorney Howard I. James, vigorously attacked his character and credibility, branding him as above.

Cummons acted as "stool pigeon" for the Police Department and, according to his testimony at the hearing, purchased liquor at the places of John Lynch, Pond and Washington streets; Angelo Spinelli, Wood street; and Vito Lupino, 512 Pond street.

Attorney James appeared for the defendants and, when the police put Cummons on the stand, trained his verbal batteries upon Cummons. He asked the Commonwealth's witness if he had not been dishonorably discharged from the United States Navy.

Cummons denied the allegation, though he admitted that he had been discharged from the navy for bad conduct in overstaying a leave of absence. He contended, however that this was not a dishonorable discharge.

All of the cases in which Cummons testified were thrown out on the ground of insufficient evidence and the Police Department lost all seven cases.

Cummons, smarting under the characterization given him, at once took up the subject of his discharge with the Attorney General of the United States. Today he received the following reply, which he claims refutes Attorney James' inference that he has lost his citizenship.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY

WASHINGTON
22 July, 1921.

Mr. Edward C. Cummons,
330 Wood street,
Bristol, Penna.
Sir:

Replying to your communication of the 14th instant, addressed to the Attorney General and referred to this Department for consideration and reply, you are informed that a bad conduct discharge from the U. S. Navy does not carry with it any forfeiture of citizenship rights under any Federal law. Such rights are only forfeited by naval offenders convicted of the offense of desertion in time of war.

From the foregoing, it will be seen that a bad conduct discharge from the Navy, pursuant to sentence of a summary court-martial, does not result in loss of citizenship rights under Federal laws. The question as to what effect if any, such discharge might have upon the civil rights of a person so discharged, under the laws of the state where he resides, is one for determination by the proper state officials.

By direction of the Secretary of the Navy.

Respectfully
(Signed) J. L. LAHINAS
Judge Advocate General.

U. S. Mail S. S. Company Makes Offer to Buy Seized Vessels

IS OPERATING THEM

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 28—A legal wrangle as to whether the state Supreme Court or the federal district court should handle the litigation resulting from the U. S. Shipping Board's attempt to seize nine trans-Atlantic liners allocated to the U. S. Mail Steamship Company resulted today in all action being postponed until Monday.

Meanwhile the vessels remain in the custody of the mail line under the temporary injunction obtained in the state Supreme Court which prohibits the Shipping Board from interference with their continued operation.

Counsel for the Shipping Board appeared in part 1 Supreme Court today and contended that the action rightfully belonged in Federal Court, despite the injunction granted several days ago by the state court.

In the absence of Justice Burr, the presiding judge when the injunction was granted, it was decided after a short argument to defer action until Monday.

Meanwhile the situation is complicated today by the Mail lines offer to purchase the ships outright. Their value is estimated in excess of $10,000,000.

WASHINGTON, July 28—The offer of the United States Mail Steamship Company to purchase outright vessels which are involved in litigation arising out of the U. S. Shipping Board's attempt to seize them will be considered in "an orderly way," according to a statement issued by the Board here today.

Citizenship In U. S. Becoming Popular

WASHINGTON, July 28—American citizenship is becoming more popular, according to the census bureau. Of the 6,928,927 foreign born white males 21 years of age, and over, enumerated in the census of 1920, 3,314,577 or 47.8 per cent., were reported as naturalized and 1,116,698 or 16.1 per cent., as having taken out first papers; 2,138,295, or 30.9 per cent., as aliens, and the remaining 358,547, or 5.2 per cent., the citizenship status was not ascertained, the census bureau announced today. According to these figures 63.9 per cent., or almost two thirds of the foreign born white males of voting age in the United States were either citizens or on their way to becoming citizens.

The corresponding percentage in 1910 was 54.2. The most striking change is in the number who have taken out first papers—570,772 in 1910 and 1,116,698 in 1920.

Hays Trying To Lure Coin From "Lisle Thread" Bank

BY W. H. ATKINS
Staff Correspondent I. N. S.

WASHINGTON, July 28—Thirty million dollars a year was the bait held out today by Postmaster General Hays to those Americans who are keeping their savings in the "lisle bank."

The Postmaster General, in continuing his drive to coax money into the postal savings bank announced that legislation providing reforms in the Postal Savings System will raise the interest from 2 to 3 per cent on postal savings deposits. The Postmaster General believes that this would draw forth increased deposits of at least $1,000,000, netting interest of $30,000,000 on money which is now tucked away in the old stockings and other hiding places.

Under this plan the postmaster general said today, such an enormous sum, accepted at United States Post offices on postal savings accounts, and re-deposited in banks, would produce a remarkably stimulating effect upon business. Mr. Hays fully expects that when the reforms are effected in the near future, assuring Postmasters

Swam Out to Investigate and Got a Nerve Shock

NO IDENTIFICATION

Head Wound May Mean Foul Play Before Body Entered River

Bristol women who, while swimming in the Delaware River at Florence Heights yesterday afternoon, discovered what they thought was a floating log to be a drowned colored man, have today hardly recovered from the nervous shock they experienced.

The Bristol women included Mrs. Jonathan S. Wright, Mrs. William K. Fine, Mrs. Arthur Fine, Muriel Fine, Miss Winifred Hussey and Miss Mary Farley.

While playing around in shallow water, one of the party saw a strange appearing black object farther out in the stream and suggested that they swim out and see what it was. Not thinking that it might be a corpse, several of the women bathers complied.

When a few strong strokes brought them alongside the object, in deep water, and they realized what it was, screams burst from them simultaneously. Their cries summoned the one lone man in the party, Jonathan S. Wright, druggist, of Mill street, Bristol. He swam out and secured the body while the women stood on the bank, with averted faces. With assistance of other men who had been summoned Mr. Wright made the body fast to a tree on the shore and word was sent to Coroner Isaac Cliver, of Burlington County.

Coroner Cliver shortly afterward viewed the body and turned it over to Undertaker Slack, of Burlington, where it awaits identification. No identification had been made up until this afternoon.

The description of the man given by the authorities is as follows:—Height, 5 feet, 6 inches; weight, 160 pounds. Clothing of good material and make, new black shoes, blue suit, striped four-in-hand tie, and striped silk shirt. The man's age is estimated at about 40 years.

There is a deep cut over one eye, resembling one that might be inflicted by a razor. This has spurred the county authorities to a rigid investigation.

THE BIRTHPLACE OF MCKINLEY

Quite a controversy has begun in Ohio regarding the house in which the beloved, martyred President, William McKinley, was born, and citizens of the town of Niles are endeavoring to inform the nation accurately as to this most interesting, historic occurrence.

McKinley was born in a humble home in Niles, the house being then located on South Main street, on the site now occupied by the McKinley Savings & Loan Company. According to statements emanating from Niles, the old McKinley home was bought by private interests, and was rebuilt and moved to a new location near Girard, on the main automobile road running from Niles to Youngstown. The present site is called McKinley Heights. It is said that an admission price of twenty-five cents is charged for entering and inspecting the house.

The citizens of Niles deserve to be congratulated for explaining this subject, which is of considerable historic importance. Records and relics of the past quickly become hazy and dubious under the most favorable conditions, and they lose their patriotic significance and historical value if they are clouded with uncertainty.

To this city and this State the compulsion to which Niles is put in order to disseminate full information regarding the McKinley birthplace is a timely suggestion that steps should be taken in due time to preserve historic treasures. Places and buildings where events of lasting interest to the people occurred should be preserved, if possible, or societies should at least see that they are marked with tablets and that the records of the past are reliable beyond any question.

Development is rapid, and with it changes are removing the material traces of the relics, heirlooms and records as if these treasures were but worthless clay. Now is the time to arrange for the preservation of historical valuables and the collection and rectification of papers and facts of persons and events of the past.

DEMOCRACY'S PARASITES

Fanaticism, persecution and intolerance have occurred periodically in all ages of history, and their motives always have been ignorance and ill-temper. Their acts invariably have been tyrannous, irrational, rancorous, punitive, and tempestuous, like the insane, prejudiced, narrow, revolutionary and destructive ideas from which these transgressions sprang.

Followers of movements and members of organizations which conspire maliciously to breed malignant discord in society and spread their abominable and contemptible contagion of vindictive bigotry are now, as always, benighted persons of limited experience and morose and darkened minds. They would be unnoticed objects of silently considerate and amusing pity, were they not, as they are, vile carriers of venomous doctrines, base plotters of mean and even bloody deeds, parasites gnawing at the root of the most hallowed American principles and ideals.

The Northwest is disturbed at the present time by pernicious activities of the I. W. W.'s, firebrand zealots of an anarchic socialism germinated by emotional excitement and chaotic thought. Citizens of towns and rural districts, in restrained anger and disgust, are driving them in herds from place to place, like unowned, fugitive cattle. The Northwest is controlling these roaming bands of crazed human beings with as much sympathy as possible, and it will break them up by obliging them to move on and on until reason returns.

The Klu Klux Klan, which is concentrating its work in the Southwest at this moment, is one of the most dastardly organizations ever formed, and, though it seems to have made headway in gaining adherents, the Southwest will unmask and destroy it, and set an example to the rest of the United States of vigorous and speedy extermination of unpatriotic fanaticism.

Masons, Pythians, Odd Fellows, Protestants, Catholics and Jews live in tolerance, accord and friendliness, as true Americans, because, though they may differ in their views, they respect one another's opinions and rights. To all and each of them the Stars and Stripes is the emblem of liberty, justice and democracy.

It is organizations such as the Klu Klux Klan that disgrace the Declaration of Independence. By their mad intolerance, inflammatory despotism and bigoted conspiracies and persecutions, all engendered by ignorance and rancor, they agitate hate and strife. Lurking, odious schemers, they are the worst foes which democracy has to overcome. They exist, plot and operate in contempt of fundamental American principles. Kluckers will not long survive in the progressive Southwest, and they will not exist long anywhere under the radiance of the Star Spangled Banner. America is American.

HALF OF WORLD'S GOLD HERE

The United States now has practically half of the world's money supply of gold, or approximately one-sixth of all the precious yellow metal known to be mined since the discovery of America by Columbus. One of the peculiarities of gold is that every addition to the stock is permanent. The supply and production of gold bear a very close relationship to the ever-increasing volume of business.

The imported gold is not put into circulation, but is kept in storage, and it is, therefore, having no effect on prices in the United States. But it is having serious effects on prices in foreign lands and is paralyzing trade in this country. The governments of Europe are on a paper-money basis, because they have virtually no gold at all, and prices stand in European lands on the inflation of flimsy currency. The gold is pouring into America to liquidate debts, and the different countries cannot buy goods from the United States at this time because they are steeped in poverty.

The nations of the world will soon have to do business with us. Necessity will compel them to do so. We will have to dispose of an enormous quantity of our gold supply, both to prevent a reign of extravagance here and to re-stabilize the various monetary systems. In all probability the problem will be worked out on credit plans, whereby the money will be distributed in all parts of the world and goods will be bought simultaneously from this country. The credit goods.

It will take many years for the ebb and flow of gold to find the universal common level. The yellow metal will keep on coming back to us as interest on loans. According to the law of commerce, the equilibrium should be established partly by heavy imports to us, and partly by chains of debit and credit operations among a dozen or a score of nations, representing inter-trading and inter-balancing of accounts.

The most serious hazard of our being the creditor nation for all the world is that we may exclude ourselves from international trade. The logical operations for us, in order to maintain a commercial balance, would seem to be to promote trade in comparatively new fields, such as South America and the Orient.

CHORUS: "HOORAY!"

Comment on Timely Topics

Illinois, one of the greatest of the American States, undoubtedly has a far more strenuous and difficult problem ahead of it than the prosecution of Gov. Len Small on the indictment of manipulating $10,000,000 of the public money to his personal profit. If the charges which have been made against the governor's honesty are proved, the chief executive should be punished, and he should be compelled to feel the wrath of the people's malediction.

The specific allegation is that Governor Small, when acting as State Treasurer, lent $10,000,000 of the State's money at two per cent interest, whereas the loans actually produced seven percent. The diversion continued for two years after his retirement from this office. Apparently, there was no security in the Treasurer's office for the loans.

This is not a new or isolated practice. It is quite a habit in many States for public officers to reap gain for themselves by using public money in private ventures. The offense belongs in the general category of transgressions which are known as "conventional crimes." The wrong has been committed before in Illinois and doubtless is still committed wherever it can be attempted with more or less impunity.

Gov. Small is not a fit man to occupy the chair of chief executive unless he disproves the charge. It would not be adequate for him to escape punishment by a technical or circumstantial decision or ruse. Unless he clears his honor completely, and to the satisfaction of a majority of citizens of Illinois, the people would mistrust his sincerity and loyalty. Patriotism is one of the most valuable and necessary qualifications of a public officer.

It has been a matter of common knowledge for several years that politics in Illinois was corrupt. A disreputable and unscrupulous gang has dominated Chicago and run that city for selfish ends and to the detriment of the city. The success of Small in the last election extended the pernicious sway of the infamous Thompson gang of Chicago to the State at large. There obviously is unsavory truth in the ratiolatory thundering of Gov. Small that his political enemies and other State officers are contemptible and scheming parasites, preying directly and insidiously on the public. That the Governor's counter-charges bear the stamp of positive truth is known to the people. Sad as it is, it must be admitted that there are cross-currents of the most abominable political pollution among the groups with and against Gov. Small.

Illinois has a most arduous and unpleasant duty before it, but the State will be equal to it. It will have to punish all whom it can and should punish for dishonesty or dishonesty, and it will have to rid the political machines of the tricksters who are robbing the people and defaming Illinois.

While the highways are getting terribly crowded with automobiles yet the congestion is somewhat relieved by the large number being smashed up all the time.

With No Revolvers, the Holdup Man's Victims Would Have a Chance

By JOHN R. THOMPSON, Chicago Restaurant Man

Citizen disarmament! Aside from world disarmament there is nothing so important to civilization.

This is my opinion and incidentally explains why I have inserted in several newspapers an advertisement reading thus:

"I will pay $1,000 to anyone who will give one good reason why the revolver manufacturing industry should be allowed to exist in America and enjoy the facilities of the mails."

The revolver always has been and still is a menace to any community. It is merely a weapon for the thug, the holdup man and the murderer. It is impossible to turn to any useful purpose, as one uses the rifle or shotgun. Where would our holdup man, doing such a thriving business in Chicago today, be, if he could not get hold of a revolver? He couldn't very well go round packing a shotgun or rifle, and if he carried only a piece of lead pipe or club the victim would at least have a fighting chance.

I have long been convinced the revolver should go and the advertisement is the first of a series to arouse public sentiment against it as the initial step toward a bill in congress banning the making of small firearms.

OBSERVATIONS

The fact that the stock market is recovering does not prove that many of the speculators will ever recover their money.

Some people consider it hard times if they ever have to do any hard work.

If all these agents and canvassers would knock instead of tinging the electric bell, it would not be necessary to send for the electrician so often.

The people who can't go to church on account of the hot weather seem to prefer the sunbaked motor roads to the cool and quiet sanctuary.

The politicians feel that the disabled soldiers should be taken care of as soon as the political workers are all attended to.

Some people kick because it is not so easy to dispose of a wife and acquire a new one, as to sell their automobile and get the new one registered.

Some folks who don't dare drive an automobile or go in swimming are dying in their chairs for lack of exercise.

LITTLE TALKS

In many places taxes have become so high that it has proved almost impossible to secure sidewalk construction and repairs. As long as people could stub along over rough walks without falling down, they were inclined to let walking conditions deteriorate.

The Lima, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce has been showing what can be done in a sidewalk building campaign. They set out to persuade each of the 1345 members of the chamber to co-operate by repairing his own walks. At a joint meeting of several clubs, over 300 members gave their support to the drive. A house to house campaign all over the city is being conducted to persuade people to rebuild their walks.

The results already achieved show that over 12 miles of walks will be put down in that city this summer. This will attract new residents, stimulate building and make the city look infinitely more up to date. Such a movement is needed in Bristol.

CHAPTER XVIII.

In Which Mr. Lincoln, Samson and Harry Take a Long Ride Together and the Latter Visit the Flourishing Little City of Chicago.

Mr. Lincoln had brought the papers which Harry was to take to Bim, and made haste to deliver them. The boy was eager to be off on his mission. The fields were sown. The new buyer was coming to take possession in two weeks. Samson and Harry had finished their work in New Salem.

"Wait till tomorrow and maybe I'll go with ye," said Samson. "I'm anxious to take a look at that little mushroom city of Chicago."

"And buy a few corner lots?" Abe asked, with a smile.

"No; I'll wait till next year. They'll be cheaper then. I believe in Chicago. It's placed right—on the waterway to the north and east, with good country on three sides and transportation on the other. It can go into partnership with Steam Power right away and begin to do business. Your grain and pork can go straight from there to Albany and New York and Boston and Baltimore without being rehandled. When railroads come—if they ever do—Steam Power will be shoving grain and meat and passengers into Chicago from every point of the compass."

Abe Lincoln turned to Sarah and said: "This is a growing country. You ought to see the cities springing up there in the legislature. I was looking with great satisfaction at the crop when Samson came along one day and fell on it. He was like a frost in midsummer."

"The seed was sown too early," Samson rejoined. "You and I may live to see all the dreams of Vandalia come true."

"And all the nightmares, too," said the young statesman.

"Yes, we're going to wake up and find a cold morning and not much to eat in the house and the wolf at the door, but we'll live through it."

Then the young statesman proposed: "If you are going with Harry, I'll go along and see what they've done on the Illinois and Michigan canal. Some contractors who worked on the Erie canal will start from Chicago Monday to look the ground over and bid on the construction of the southern end of it. I want to talk with them when they come along down the line."

"I guess a few days in the saddle would do you good," said Samson.

"I reckon it would. I've been cloyed on house air and oratory and turtur greatness. The prairie wind and your pessimism will straighten me up."

Harry rode to the village that afternoon to get "Colonel" and Mrs. Lukins to come out to the farm and stay with Sarah while he and Samson were away.

Josiah, now a sturdy boy of thirteen, stood in the dooryard, holding the two saddle ponies from Nebraska which Samson had bought of a drover. Betsey, a handsome young miss almost fifteen years old, stood beside him. Sarah, whose face had begun to show the wear of years full of loneliness and hard work, was packing the saddle-bags, now nearly filled, with extra socks and shirts and doughnuts and bread and butter.

They met Abe Lincoln at the tavern, where he was waiting on a big horse which he had borrowed for the trip from James Rutledge. Without delay, the three men set out on the north road in perfect weather. From the hill's edge they could look over a wooded plain running far to the east.

As they rode on, the young statesman repeated a long passage from one of the sermons of Dr. William Ellery Channing on the "Instability of Human Affairs."

"I wish that I had your memory," Samson remarked.

"My memory is like a piece of metal," said the young legislator. "Learning is not easy for me. It's rather slow work—like engraving with a tool. But when a thing is once printed on my memory it seems to stay there. It doesn't rub out. When I run across a great idea, well expressed, I like to put it on the wall of my mind where I can live with it. In this way every man can have his own little art gallery and be in the company of great men."

They forded a creek in deep water, where a bridge had been washed away.

As they came out dripping on the farther shore, Lincoln remarked: "The thing to do in fording a deep stream is to keep watch of your horse's ears. As long as you can see 'em you're all right."

"Mr. Lincoln, I'm sorry—you got into a hole," said Samson.

"I don't mind that, but while we're traveling together, please don't call me 'Mr. Lincoln.' I don't think I've done anything to deserve such lack of respect."

Samson answered: "If you're nice to us, I don't know but we'll call ye 'Abe' again, just for a few days. You can't expect us to go too far with a man who associates with judges and generals and governors and such trash. If you keep it up, you're bound to lose standing in our community."

"I know I've changed," said Abe. "I've grown older since Ann died—years ago—but I don't want you fellows to throw me over. I'm on the same level that you are and I intend to stay there. It's a fool notion that men go up some heavenly stairway to another plane when they begin to do things worth while. That's a kind of feudalistic twaddle. The wise man keeps his feet on the ground and lifts his mind as high as possible. The higher he lifts it, the more respect he will have for the common folk. Have either of you seen McNamar since he got back?"

"I saw him the day he drove into the village," Harry answered. "He was expecting to find Ann and make good his promise to marry her."

"Poor fool! It's a sad story all around," said Abe Lincoln. "He's not a bad fellow, I reckon, but he broke Ann's heart. Didn't realize what a tender thing it was. I can't forgive him."

In the middle of the afternoon they came in sight of the home of Henry Brimstead.

"Here's where we stop and feed, and listen to Henry's secrets," said Samson.

The level fields were cut into squares outlined by wooden stakes.

Brimstead was mowing the grass in his dooryard. He dropped his scythe and came to welcome the travelers.

"Say, don't you know that you are standing in the center of a large and promising city?" he said to Samson. "You are standing at the corner of Grand avenue and Empire street, in the growing city of El Dorado, near the great water highway of Illinois," Brimstead declaimed.

"Where's he growin'?" Samson demanded.

Brimstead came closer and said in a confidential tone: "If you stand right where you are an' listen, you'll hear it growin'."

"It sounds a good deal like a turnip growin' in a garden," Samson remarked, thoughtfully.

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

PUZZLED PURPLE FINCH.

"I am very much puzzled," said Mr. Purple Finch.

"Are you indeed?" asked Mrs. Purple Finch.

"I most certainly am," said Mr. Purple Finch.

"Are you indeed?" said Mrs. Purple Finch, once more.

She really didn't know what puzzled meant, and she was hoping that Mr. Purple Finch would explain without her having to ask him what it meant.

She waited a moment longer and then Mr. Purple Finch said:

"Yes, I do not understand it. It puzzles me. It is something I cannot understand."

"What don't you understand?" asked Mrs. Purple Finch.

"I don't understand why I am called a Purple Finch," said Mr. Purple Finch.

"Well, for that matter I don't see why I should be called a Purple Finch either," said Mrs. Purple Finch. "I'm certainly not purple. I wear brown and gray feathers, but then of course the reason I am Mrs. Purple Finch is because I am the mate of Mr. Purple Finch."

"Ah, but that is what puzzles me," said Mr. Purple Finch. "I am not a purple colored bird either. I do not wear purple feathers."

"I wear rose-colored feathers, and I have brown touches in my wings and tail and upon my back. In fact, my wings are brown."

"But the color which I love above all others is rose. Yes, I wear rose colored feathers and am considered quite beautiful by those who know me."

"Why should I be called a purple finch when I am not purple? Why should such a thing be? I do not understand it. I am quite puzzled."

"I do not understand it either," said Mrs. Purple Finch. "The eggs which hatch out into birdlings aren't purple, either. They are green in color."

"And they are decorated with little black spots. There is nothing purple about the eggs, either."

"It is indeed very puzzling, and I do not understand," said Mr. Purple Finch.

Mrs. Purple Finch well understood what the word puzzled meant by now, so she could use it herself.

"You haven't been singing as much lately as you did in the spring," Mrs. Purple Finch told her mate.

"Ah, my dear," said Mr. Purple Finch, "when the early spring is on the way and the snow is beginning to go, I sing for joy that the great springtime is coming.

"But when the summer comes there is so much for me to do. I have marketing to attend to and other duties of that sort, looking after my fine family and so forth that I haven't quite the time to sing as I had in the springtime."

"It doesn't mean that I am any less happy. It merely means that I'm a little busier, that is all."

"Yes, I do sing all the time when the springtime is here. I sing a strong warbling song of the springtime and of the going of the snow."

GREAT MASS OF PROOF

Reports of 50,000 Cases of Kidney Trouble, Some of Them Bristol Cases

Each of some 6,000 newspapers of the United States is publishing from week to week, names of people in its particular neighborhood, who have used and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder troubles and urinary disorders. This mass of proof includes over 50,000 recommendations. Bristol is no exception. Here is one of the Bristol cases.

William Johnson, retired railroad man, 635 Cedar street, says: "I suffered for years with a lame back, due to an accident that happened while on the road. I was so sore and pains caught me so badly, I could hardly get on my feet. I couldn't turn in bed. I suffered with awful pains in my head and my kidneys were irregular in action and weak. I doctored and tried several other remedies, but nothing helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. This good remedy got right to the seat of the trouble and relieved me."

"I love to sing that song. It is an old favorite with me. I like to get on a high tree and sing as hard as I can!"

"Springtime and singing somehow seem to go together."

"But I do not understand about any name. Now, Mr. Purple Grackle is purple. That is, he is partly purple and does wear some fine purple feathers."

"But why I am named the Purple Finch is something I do not know, and if anyone will tell me why, I will be greatly obliged. Yes, I will be greatly obliged."

"I would like to know, too," said Mrs. Purple Finch. "I wish someone would tell us."

"Perhaps we will yet find out," said Mr. Purple Finch. "Let us hope so."

"Let us hope so," said Mrs. Purple Finch. "Indeed, let us hope so, for we do not want to be puzzled always."

THEY WENT FISHING.

Two men took a trip into the woods to hunt and fish. During the trip one of them had the misfortune to lose his pocketbook and the other one lost his check book.

When they discovered their loss one of them laughed for he knew he could easily get another check book. But the other man did not laugh. He hurried back to the woods and spent many hours looking for his money.

If the checking system had no other value it would be well worth while from the standpoint of safety alone—but there are many other advantages, too. Nine times as much business is done each day with checks as is done with cash.

You will enjoy the prompt and careful service we give to all who favor us with their patronage. Think it over.

Disarmament Parley Causes Japan Distrust

By DUKE N. PARRY
Staff Correspondent L. S.
TOKIO, July 28.—Distrust of their former ally, Great Britain, appears to be one of the results in Japan brought about by the issuance of President Harding's disarmament conference invitation.

While issued as the call of the American President, to be held in the capital city of the United States, many leading Japanese criticise Great Britain saying that Great Britain awaited the call of Harding as a solution of the anglo-japanese alliance renewal tangle and the need for retrenchment in naval building that confronted Great Britain.

Kojiro Sugimori, well known professor of Waseda university, and one whose opinion on international matters is regarded highly throughout Japan, called on Tokio foreign office to begin a campaign at once for a resumption of close relations with Russia, as an offset to what is termed the coming "Japanese isolation."

"An unmistakable indication of the future position of Japan" writes Professor Sugimori, "is the evident change in the attitude of Great Britain towards us."

Republicans Encounter Opposition, Is Report

LONDON July 28.—The delay which has arisen over the formulation of the Sinn Fein reply to Premier Lloyd George's peace offer led to belief in semi official circles today that the Republicans are encountering severe obstacles in their cabinet conversations at Dublin.

British officials are hopeful however, that the Sinn Fein cabinet will be able to reach a satisfactory agreement soon and communicate a formula to Lloyd George that will enable him to arrange a general parley in London.

It is definitely learned that the Premier has the support of the leading English Unionists and they are expected to bring pressure upon the Ulster Unionists if the Sinn Fein sends a satisfactory answer.

A report that Eamonn De Valera has sent a preliminary communication to Premier Lloyd George is denied in authoritative quarters said the Daily News today.

It is understood that thirty six members of Dail Eireann, the Sinn Fein parliament, will be released shortly to take part in the peace discussions at Dublin.

U. S. Must Not Disarm Before Other Nations

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The United States must never disarm and then wait for other armed nations to act, even though "pacifists and middle-headed idiots may shout for the United States to set an example to the rest of the world by disarming Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt declared in a brief speech before the Rotary Club here.

"We are facing one of the most important conferences the world has ever known," the secretary said.

"The limitation of armament will be the one thought uppermost as the coming conference, but I want to say to you that we must never as Americans under any circumstances, put our country in a position where she is not able to defend herself against anything and everything that may arise."

Elks' Ball Players Meet Defeat At Their Debut

The Elks made their debut last night in the field of athletics by placing on the diamond a nine representing Bristol Lodge, No. 970, B. P. O. E.

The Elks ballplayers met defeat, however, in their initial effort and were slaughtered by a team representing the Third Ward.

The score stood about 8 to 2, for the seven innings the game ran. Despite the one-sided nature of the score, the game was full of "pep" and interest was kept at a high pitch. There was a large crowd on hand and it was apparently evenly divided in its sympathies.

Such notables as "Dan" Griffin, "Sam" Pearson, "Barrister" Eastburn, "Ted" Roberts and others chased the horsehide pill over the lot. They did most of their chasing when the other fellows hit.

Warrant Awaits Appearance Of Governor Small

would then be brought to test the validity of the governor's technical arrest although its common usage is to obtain the physical release of a prisoner. The action, it was stated, would involve a new angle of the law itself and might result in a long drawn out legal battle over technicalities involving a question of the court's jurisdiction.

"The habeas corpus proceeding must be brought after the arrest of the governor," Mortimer declared. "The legal forum for such an action is in this county. I cannot say whether a court in some other county could legally consider such a proceeding."

The governor at an early hour today had not replied to the request of Sheriff Mester that he submit himself to service of the warrants held here against him.

'ROUND THE SPORT CIRCLE WITH JACK VEIOCK, International News Sporting Editor.

MIRACLE MANAGERS of the last few years have come from behind the bat. And the National League has had all of them.

Starting back in 1914 George Stallings, a catcher, though never a great one in his playing days, led the Braves from the ruck to the World's championship. Stallings was hailed as a "miracle man" right off the bat.

In 1915 Pat Moran took a handful of castoff players and drove the Phillies to the National League pennant, and the following year your Uncle Wilbert Robinson raised the Dodgers from the trailing class to National League champions, repeating with them last year. Robby brought Brooklyn back into the spotlight after sixteen years of obscurity. In his day he was one of the greatest of catchers.

Fred Mitchell, who aided Stallings at Boston in 1914, made champions of the 1918 Cubs. He had a big money bag back of him, yet it was his managerial ability that landed the pennant. And Mitchell was a catcher in bygone days.

The 1919 Reds, under Moran, won the first National League pennant flown at Cincinnati in something like half a century and emerged from the clouded world's series champions of the universe. Regardless of the cloud cast over that now infamous series, Moran was something of a miracle man in Redville, and, like his predecessors in the miraculous business, Moran came up from catching ranks.

Will 1921 produce a miracle man in George Gibson? Pittsburgh fans believe it will. Gibson, of course, has a nicely balanced ball club, but he has been performing miracles with it in the way of morale and considering the opposition he has to contend with the winning of a pennant by the Buceaneers will be something of a miracle after all.

Now that Jock the Hutch and Long Jem Barnes have copped the cups, what are they going to do with 'em in these arid days?

Cunningham, the Giants' new outfielder from Seattle, certainly has a big incentive to make good with New York. The kid has the fans with him, and this means everything, especially a youngster.

This lad is a little fellow, smaller than Kauff. He is fast as an antelope and a corking fielder. He stands up to the plate nicely, too, and has the earmarks of a good hitter. But there is doubt about his readiness for a regular job in the big show. For one thing his throwing from the garden is off color. He may have a good arm but in the games he has played so far he hasn't proven it.

Pegging to the plate or the bases is an art that young outfielders should pay more attention to. Many of them come up with nearly everything else but the ability to peg and the baseball sense to throw to the right sack with men on the bases. There's no excuse for an outfielder making the wrong peg, as a rule. It is just as much an evidence of bone as it would be for a catcher to peg to third to catch a man stealing second.

Joe Humphreys, dean of metropolitan announcers from the ringside, always has a comeback for the boys. Joe recently had occasion to appear in soup and fish.

"Oh, Joe," piped a professional kiddie, "take good care of it, I want to rent it tomorrow night."

"I wish to announce," Humphreys went on, "That the train for the wise crackers leaves in ten minutes."

The Yellow Jackets, at Georgia Tech, are going to be minus the services of Coach Joe Guyon next Fall.

Guyon, whose ability as a coach can scarcely be rated second to that of his class as a player, has given up the coaching job at Atlanta because he could not keep it and play professional football with Jim Thorpe's Canton Bulldogs at the same time.

Last year Guyon used to travel back and forth between Atlanta and Canton, or wherever the Bulldogs were playing, over the week ends. But the traveling wasn't a pleasant thing and the expense was so great that Thorpe suggested he get a coaching job in the Middle West, where he could be nearer the stamping ground of the famous Bulldogs. Guyon agreed to the plan. The Yellow Jackets then agreed that geography is all wrong.

Just keep a weather eye on this Vince Richards and Willie Davis during the remainder of the summer. Here's a pair who may figure in that Davis cup challenge round.

Keen Competition In Tennis Matches

Coming National Contests Sure to Attract Best Players of Country

STARS IN TRAINING

BY JACK VEIOCK
(I. N. S. Sporting Editor)

NEW YORK, July 28.—Time honored rivalry between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts will be set aside to some extent during the coming tennis season as the country's greatest stars band together in their efforts to repel invading players in the Davis matches.

Competition in the national title events, however, will be keener from an intersectional standpoint than since before the war and while each American player will do his or her best in turning back foreign aspirants to the titles, co-operation will end right there.

California and other sections of the west will be strongly represented in the national men's and women's singles and doubles this year. The "Golden State" has already sent on three great players in Miss Mary Browne, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Willie E. Davis. Miss Browne and Mrs. Bundy, playing in the New York State championship, had reached the semi-final round today and were favored to come through to the finals. Willie Davis is getting valuable practice at Longwood, having just recently arrived from the west.

William M. Johnston, joint winner of the Davis cup with Bill Tilden, will be on and it is expected that Clarence Griffin and Roland Roberts will also take part in the national events this fall, while Miss Helen Wills, San Francisco's girl tennis "phenom" may be entered in the women's events.

dence; the uncertainty of Tilden's game this summer and the close approach of the first of the big annual fixtures—the women's national singles and doubles at Forest Hills, August 15, together with Davis cup ties, is giving the tennis devotees plenty of food for speculation.

Miss Suzanna Leglen, the French tennis star, is due to sail from France next Saturday and Mrs. Mollie B. Malory, American woman champ, is expected to start for the United States about the same time in order to be here in time to defend her title.

WE will almost be willing to let you make your own prices on the printing we do for you. We know to a nickel just what our work costs, and if you are willing to add the same percentage of profit that you expect from your own business, we will probably be satisfied. It is a matter of system, and the system of finding and knowing costs was practically unheard of twenty-five years ago. We don't guess that a job costs so much, and then make a bet with ourselves that it will show a profit.
